

DOCTOR OF EDUCATION LEADERSHIP, CURRICULUM AND INSTRUCTION

Educators with a deep understanding of curriculum and technology provide leadership to shape the future of education

Evangel University's Doctor of Education Leadership in Curriculum Instruction equips you to be an effective leader who leaves a lasting impact on the field of education. Graduates of this rigorous program will be prepared for school district central office administrative positions including superintendent, assistant superintendent, director of operations, and director of curriculum development and assessment. This is a terminal degree which helps K-12 building administrators move to the next level of administrative certification. Likewise, if your goal is to make an impact at the collegiate level, this degree will prepare you to take on university administrative positions with confidence. The program features:

- ▼ Opportunity to step through the course sequence with peers
- ▼ Preparation for the complex and challenging role of school leadership
- ▼ Emphasis on curriculum design techniques and the use of technology as a leadership and instructional tool

Prerequisites:

- ▼ Master's degree from a regionally accredited college or university
- ▼ GPA of 3.0 or better in master's program coursework
- ▼ Official results of required entrance examinations

Program starts: Summer

Program format: Hybrid or fully online

Program credits: 50; potential to transfer up to 15 credit hours for coursework beyond a master's degree

Tuition: $600 per credit for 2020-2021
